TENSION INTENSIFIED AS TROOPS PARADE BATON ROUGE STREETS

British Tommies (above) received the jolly Nazi salute from Saarlanders as they took up billets in Saarbrücken to patrol the valley during the League of Nations recent plebiscite, and immediately began making friends with the frauleins. Two of them are pictured below in a language difficulty while picking out the inevitable postcards for home. This is the first picture of the arrival of the British troops to reach Hong Kong.

LINDBERGH BABY CONFESSION

BRITISH-BORN GANGSTER "SQUEALS" TO SAVE WIFE

HOW THE PLANS MISCARRIED

A REMARKABLE CONFESSION OF COMPLICITY IN THE KIDNAPPING WHICH RESULTED IN THE DEATH OF THE LINDBERGH BABY HAS BEEN MADE TO "THE PEOPLE" BY A GANGSTER NOW LIVING IN ENGLAND.

He is the man who supplied the information which led to the arrest of Bruno Hauptmann, who is now being tried for the kidnapping and murder of the baby in 1932 — the worst crime in history — at Flemington, New Jersey.

The ex-gunner here reveals the true story of the kidnap plot; how the gang went to work; how the baby died and was buried; and how the gangsters used every means in their power to escape justice.

Although British-born, the man who supplied the information about the crime has spent nearly all his life in America. He is living in poverty in a sea-side town, fearful of being killed by vengeance-seeking gangsters.

He is known to the police of Britain and America as Tommygun Tex Burns; and once he was the henchman of the Capone and Purple gangs.

Burns, "squealed" to save his wife and boy from starvation, and, sooner or later, the gangsters say, he will have to pay the penalty of gangland for his "squeal."

Finding himself penniless and stranded in England after deportation from the U.S.A., Burns, himself implicated in the crime, went to the local American Consul and told what he knew about the kidnapping.

But I am not just taking Tex's word for that, writes the special correspondent.

I called on that particular consul. He was guarded in his statements, but admitted that Burns had visited him.

"It is quite true," he said cautiously, "that Burns came here, and supplied me with information about the Lindbergh crime, which I immediately forwarded to the proper authorities."

Further than that he would not go.

Tommygun Tex himself, however, claimed full credit for bringing the gangsters to book, once he had satisfied himself that I was a friend, and not an enemy.

The last person to see the Lindbergh baby alive, Betty Gow, his nurse, went to Flemington, New Jersey, from her home in Scotland to testify at Bruno Hauptmann's trial. She was listed aboard the ship as "Bessie Galloway."

Dr. Hu Shih, eminent Chinese scholar, was also an arrival by the Hoover, after a tour of the south. He refused to make a statement on the Canton trouble, and announced that he will be leaving for Peiping very shortly.

GOLD TREASURE HUNT

FEVERISH SEARCH IN KENT, ESSEX AND SURREY FOR MISSING £20,000

A treasure hunt is proceeding for the gold bars which fell from the Hillman airliner, which, when flying from Paris to London, made a forced landing in Essex owing to the violence of the storm that was raging over the Channel on Saturday.

London, To-day.

It is uncertain whether they fell into the sea, but the police of Essex, Kent and Sussex have been mobilised for a search which will be difficult as the plane crashed a sparsely-populated and well-wooded part of the country, and also to the fact that owing to the force of the impact the bars may be buried several feet in the ground.

A partner in the firm of Samuel Montagu and Company, to whom the bullion was consigned, states that the gold lost might be worth over £20,000, as the Company expected a consignment of eight bars valued at £2,800 each.

NERVOUSNESS IN CHAHAR

REFUGEES REACH PEIPING

Peiping, To-day.

It is learned on reliable authority that the Chinese will appoint three delegates to attend the conference to settle the Chahar affair, one each from the political and military councils and one from General Hung Chieh-yuan's army.

It is hoped that the conference will meet before the end of January.

Though Chahar remain quiet the civilian population is exceedingly nervous. Refugees are reported to be pouring into Kalgan from Eastern Chahar, while a number of refugees have come as far as Peiping. Reuter.

CANTON IN GRIP OF COLD SPELL

Better Business For Coal Merchants

FUR DEALERS UNAFFECTED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, To-day.

With the mercury at 42 degrees Fahrenheit early this morning, Canton is in the grip of bitterly cold weather. Heavy rain and cloudy skies have added misery to the poor people and hawkers.

The two municipal hostels located at the North and South ends of Pearl River Bridge were full of "guests" who paid two coppers each for the accommodation for one night. These two lodging places can hold about 450 people, and only the lucky ones can spend the night there. The less fortunate ones still sleep under the verandahs in Tai Ping Road South and the Bund.

Coal merchants report a slightly better business owing to the demand of coal for heating purposes in the homes of the rich. Fur dealers are doing brisk business.

ALL STATE BUILDINGS GUARDED

OMINOUS QUIET REIGNS

"SQUARE DEALERS" LACK LEADERSHIP

Baton Rouge, Louisiana, To-day.

Additional troops have been moved into the city, where the situation is extremely tense.

All the State buildings are heavily guarded and patrols are constantly parading the streets.

It is reported that Theodore O'Rourke, the president of the "Square Dealers" Association, has disappeared. Reuter.

Militant-minded opponents of the Senator Huey P. "Kingfish" Long's Dictatorship, who hitherto have lacked unanimity, have now formed themselves into state-wide organisation, which threaten direct action unless the dictatorship laws are immediately repealed.

A cable received yesterday stated that a pitched battle between National Guards and leaders of the Square Deal organisation was narrowly averted at East Baton Rouge airport, where nearly a hundred heavily armed men assembled to await the expected departure of the Louisiana dictator.

The National Guards advanced on the "Square Dealers" with fixed bayonets, and the rebels, in an ugly mood, for some time showed no signs of retreating.

MACAO HOCKEY WIN OVER SIGNALS

COSTA RESTED FOR INTERPORT

MARTIN AND MARSH GIVE GOOD DISPLAY

For the third time in succession Macao defeated the Royal Corps of Signals by five clear goals in a hockey match at Macao yesterday. The feature of the game was the brilliant display by Ramalho, who scored four goals in succession.

The Macao team was the same as will meet Hong Kong next Sunday, with the exception of the inside-right, Leonol, who substituted for L. Costa, who was given a rest after receiving injuries during a practice. It was stated, however, that Costa will be seen against Hong Kong in the Interport match.

The teams were:—
Macao: Almeida, G. Rodrigues and Cardoso; L. Ferreira; J. Ferreira; and Arisim; F. Nalaco, Leonol, Ramalho, H. Rosario and A. Angelo.
Signals: Marsh, Martin (Captain) and Hodges; Buttery, Dilley and Mills; May, Farrell, Addie, Austen and Fielding.

10 MISSING IN MOHAWK COLLISION

SEARCH DECLARED ABANDONED

DEATH ROLL NOW 46

New York, To-day.

The search for the remaining 10 persons missing from the sunken Mohawk has been abandoned.

It is presumed, that the total death-roll is now 46. The rescued number 117. Reuter.

The Mohawk, chartered by the Ward Line of steamers to replace another of their ships which had met with disaster off the Florida Coast, was on her first voyage under the new flag when she came into collision with the Norwegian steamer Tallman.

The Captain and five others are known to have gone down with the ship, but a large number of others, both crew and passengers, were reported missing. Many of these are thought to have been crushed to death in their quarters.

"Smooth Progress To Commonwealth"

PUBLIC HEALTH GOING AHEAD "FULL BLAST"

Shanghai, To-day.

"I do not doubt that everything is progressing smoothly towards the establishment of the Philippine Commonwealth," declared Mr. Frank Murphy on arrival here on board the President Hoover this morning.

He paid tribute to the Hon. Mr. Manuel Quezon, the President of the Philippines, as "a very able man," adding, "and he is not the only one there."

Questioned as to the problem presented by the peaceful penetration of the Chinese Senate in the Philippines, Mr. Murphy said: "You will have to ask the Filipinos what they are going to do about that."

He affirmed that the economic condition of the Philippines was very satisfactory, except in one or two provinces, while the improvement in public health was going ahead "full blast."

This evening he will be the guest of honour at a dinner given by prominent Chinese. Reuter.

The Woman's Page

Women Becoming Less Feminine

Summing Up Miss 1934 By Her "Bumps"

Clever, But She Spurns Motherhood

London. Phrenologists have decided that the modern young girl is far more intellectual and gifted with greater reasoning powers than the girls of yesterday.

From observations made during the past few months on hundreds of different types of girls, they have also found that the "bumps" on the head of "Miss 1934" show in general a lack of interest in children.

These discoveries were revealed to me when I visited the exhibition which opened at the Essex Hall, Essex Street, in connection with the 48th annual congress of the British Phrenological Society writes Walter G. Farr in the Daily Mail.

"The head of a girl of to-day compared with the head of a girl of years ago shows quite definitely that women are becoming less feminine," Dr. Ida Speelman, one of the leading experts of the society, assured me.

"Abnormal" Intellects
"This is indicated by the shortening of the back of the head where the urge for motherhood is indicated. In the ordinary way, this part of the woman's head is far more developed than that of the male. But now it is becoming more and more masculine."

"Simultaneously, the front part of the head is becoming more prominent. Hitherto it has been an essential characteristic of man's head that it should be prominent in front. The forehead of the real woman tends to slope rather than bulge in this section."

"But now in an astonishing number of the young girls one sees going about their daily lives the 'bumps' of intellect are almost abnormal if compared with the heads of girls of past generations."

"Thus it is that the head of the woman of to-day shows that she is spurning motherhood, the job which nature intended for her, and drifting farther and farther away from the feminine."

At the congress experts from all parts of the country met to compare notes on their researches during the year.

It has been found that, generally speaking, the head of the modern age is being affected by wireless, and by the cinema.

Wireless, which provides the average person with far more musical entertainment than was ever meted out before the days of

NOVEL DRESS WORN IN HOLLYWOOD

A black, cellophane dress worn by Carole Lombard in "The Gay Bride" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios was the most unusual ever to be used in a Hollywood picture. Composed of more than 3,000,000 tiny strands of cellophane ends fastened to cloth, the material required the efforts of a dozen workers for more than a month.

LATEST FASHIONS FROM NEW YORK

Black A Daytime Colour

New York. Black is the daytime colour in New York at present, even for the debutante whose aim in life is to look as cute and as girlish as she possibly can. She goes in for muffs and capelets and soft curls, and is quite amazingly lovely—this in spite of her astounding capacity for cocktails.

American women are not quite sure which is the hat of the moment. They have, however, a leaning towards a high peaked cap, and wear these or Cosack caps, high hats or tricornees indiscriminately.

New York women are all growing their hair—because Paris says so. A few loose curls at the back of the neck is a favourite hair-dressing with the younger set.

From Paris, of course, comes the American custom of having one's hair shampooed in public, instead of in the tiny cubicles in which Englishwomen usually like to hide themselves.

BREATHE-IN-THE-CURE

How Respiroids Banish Coughs, Sore Throat and Colds.

Most sore throats, coughs and colds could be avoided, or, at least, quickly checked at the start. One of the most effective ways is by the use of Respiroids. These lozenges act directly upon the respiratory system, and are therefore superior to liquid remedies which are immediately swallowed. As they dissolve slowly in the mouth aromatic curative vapours are given-off which circulate through the throat, nasal passages and lungs.

Respiroids are convenient for the pocket, and a lozenge taken at intervals forms a pleasant, permanent safeguard. Obtainable at chemists, or post free, 75 cents per bottle, from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., 451 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

"ROVER'S" DEFENCE WILL REPRESENT H.K. SOCCER INTERPORT

DIVETT OUTSTANDING IN HOCKEY PRACTICE COLONY TEAM BOW TO REST ONSLAUGHT RIGHT-WING WEAKNESS

(By "STICKS")

A BRILLIANT display by G. E. R. Divett, the Club centre-forward, was mainly responsible for the Rest eleven's surprise win over the Colony Interport hockey eleven by 3 goals to 1 at King's Park yesterday. Divett, an Interport reserve, was played on the right-wing and must have surprised the Selectors by his display.

The ground was inclined to be heavy and the result was that play was considerably slower than usual, though flashes of good form were seen here and there. The game was witnessed by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, President of the Hong Kong Hockey Association, and Captain Errol Manners, R.N., a Vice-President of the Association.

AN UNHAPPY FEATURE OF THE GAME WAS THE VERY POOR DISPLAY BY THE INTERPORT RIGHT-WING FORMATION OF GARTHWAITE AND MACKAY. THE FORMER WAS VERY INACCURATE IN HIS DISTRIBUTION, WHILE THE LATTER, IN SPITE OF THE SLOWNESS OF THE GROUND, WAS UNABLE TO TAKE A PASS CORRECTLY AND HUNGLED SEVERAL SCORING OPPORTUNITIES BY FAULTY CENTRING.

PRACTICE GAME SUGGESTED FOR WEDNESDAY

(By "ROVER")

The Interport Football Selection Committee have made a very good choice considering the two disappointing Interport trial games held on January 13 and yesterday, and the eleven players selected to represent the Colony form a very strong combination, although it could have been stronger in some respects.

The choice of the defence was exactly as I predicted it in the editions of the "China Mail" of January 14. Leung Wing-chui might possibly have fitted in better than A. V. Gosano at right-half.

The selection of the forward line has caused considerable surprise, particularly with regard to the right-wing and inside-right positions, and also the centre-forward berth.

TWO'S INCLUSION. Two Kwai-shing certainly did not give the impression of having justification selection, but presumably he was brought in because of Tam Kong-pak's inclusion at inside-right, Leung Wing-chui (S. China "A"), Lee Kwok-wai (S. China "A"), B. Gosano (Recrolo), Higgins (Lincolns), Fung King-cheong (S. China "A"), and Elliott (Kowloon).

STRONG SERVICES COMBINATION

Very Fast Forward Line

GLASS TO LEAD SIDE

The Combined Services soccer Selection Committee have chosen an excellent team to meet Shanghai on the Royal Navy and Royal Marine football ground at Causeway Bay, on February 6.

The outstanding feature of the side is the very fast-forward line, which for the first time in several seasons is conspicuous for the inclusion of two Navy forwards in Glass, the centre-forward, and Skinner, the brilliant left-winger.

In the defence Durham was a unanimous choice for goal-keeper, while Swain and West make a fairly useful pair of backs, although I would like to have seen Morrison of the Borderers at left-back.

INTERPORT SOCCER TRIAL FIASCO

FIVE PLAYERS FAIL TO MAKE APPEARANCE

HOWE AND STRANGE SHINE

(By "ROVER")

A VERY disappointing and unimpressive final Interport soccer trial was held yesterday on the Sookunpoo ground when the Possibles (Whites) defeated the Probables (Colours) by 4 goals to 3 on a ground resembling a quagmire.

The most disappointing feature of the trial was the non-appearance of five players, which resulted in the inclusion of servicemen at the last minute. When the teams were lined up it was seen that out of the total of 22 players nine of them were from the Army, and yet only three are allowed to be included in an Interport side!

The state of the ground did not allow for anything in the nature of good football, although there were numerous sensations. LI TING-SANG WHO IS ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE IN THE INTERPORT TEAM WAS AN ABSENTEE, WHILE LEE KWOK-WAI WAS INJURED IN SATURDAY'S SENIOR SHIELD REPLAY AGAINST THE NAVY. TSO KWAI-SHING, FUNG KING-CHEONG AND IP PAK-WA WERE RECALLED TO CANTON FOR DUTY, AND THESE VACANCIES CAUSED SERIOUS GAPS WHICH HAD TO BE FILLED BY WHAT WAS AVAILABLE; THE RESULT WAS THAT FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF A TRIAL THE GAME WAS A FARCE.

Indeed, yesterday's game, instead of solving several knotty problems for the Interport Selectors, gave them something further to worry about, for several of yesterday's last-minute inclusions gave much more polished displays than some of those players whose inclusion in the Interport side were almost foregone certainties.

Of the two goal-keepers, Rodger was the steadier, and it was his fault of his that Howe's goal from a header passed him, for he was unsighted. Wong Wing was also steady, but injured his right wrist early in the game and thereafter was not at his best, although making several splendid saves.

The outstanding back on display was Syd Strange, who more than justified inclusion in the Interport side on yesterday's exhibition.

He was very cool under pressure and often saved his charge from almost certain goals with timely last-minute clearances. His interceptions with his head were a feature of the game, while he robbed Howe of the ball nine times out of ten in the opening half.

KWOK SWIMS IN AUSTRALIA

Fourth In Breast Stroke Event

Sydney, Jan. 23.

Competing in the 220 yards Australian breast-stroke championship here on Monday, Kwok Chun-hang, the Chinese swimming star, finished fourth after leading half of the way. The winner was Weir, who negotiated the distance in the time of 3 minutes 7 3/5 seconds, finishing first by two feet. Inches separated Hobbs, Houston and Kwok, who finished second, third and fourth respectively.

The Chinese star got away to a fine start and led up to the half-way mark after which he dropped back. The finish was one of the closest ever witnessed here. Kwok was visibly tired in the last 20 yards. This was Kwok's first appearance here in actual competition. Previously he had taken part in a number of exhibition performances.

"As chauffeur-bodyguard to 'Flash' Fleishman, chief of the 'Purple Gang' of Detroit, I was in that hell's brew right from the start.

CAPONE'S SUBTLE PLOT.
"I might have been prosperous and flourishing over there yet had I not accompanied my chief on that fateful mission to interview Gus Winkler in his luxurious suite at the Statler Hotel, Philadelphia.

"The fact that Winkler was on drinking terms with the main 'squeeze' of the 'Purple Gang' did not look so good, for the two gangs were like a couple of stray bulldogs when they met.

"On more than one occasion I had orders to 'squeeze the trigger' on Capone's rags on sight.

"There were three other members of our gang there, and not unnaturally I assumed that it was a nice little bumping off party, with Winkler as the guest of honor.

"SNATCHING" DISCUSSED
"But I was wrong. Fleishman and Winkler did all the talking and the subject was 'snatching'.

"Lindbergh, America's idol of the air, was to be grabbed by us. That was Winkler's proposal.

"All we had to do was to snatch Lindy, hold out for a monster ransom, and over and above that, if we did not miff the job, Al Capone himself would make us a little present of about £20,000.

"It sounded too good to be true—and, of course, there was a catch in it.

"We had to hide Lindy so well that no one could find him—no one, that is, but the great, the invincible Al Capone.

"It was as subtle a plot as any ever concocted in the cunning, fox-like mind of the big Italian.

FREE PARDON RUSE
"Of course, Capone would have to be released from prison to do this little thing, but would naturally be granted a free pardon for successfully negotiating the freedom of Lindy.

"Now do you catch on? Capone would not even let his own gang do the snatching. It had to be us.

"But the chief jibbed at Lindy. He figured he was too hot to touch. He was also wise to Capone, and demanded that some of his gang should be in on the deal for moral support before he would make any kind of a 'snatch'.

"Then some bright member of the gang had the idea of kidnapping the baby—and this was agreed to.

HAUPTMANN CHOSEN
"Hauptmann, handyman on the Lindbergh estate, who has since been arrested, and will come up for trial soon, was the king-pin of this deal.

"He had worked on the estate so long that he knew the house like the back of his hand, so he was chosen to make the 'snatch'.

"He had already done two small jobs for the Capone mob, and had been passing counterfeit money, but was not as yet on the police calling list.

POLICE DELUDED
"The big final meeting of the gang was in a road house in Connecticut. For it was known that 'Red' Johnson, Lindy's chauffeur, often made trips to Hartford, Connecticut, and it was to throw suspicion in that direction that we left plenty of ends for the police to pick up.

"We considered that to be far enough away from Willow Grove, a village on the outskirts of Philadelphia, where we actually intended to take the baby.

"But the poor kid never left Hopewell, New Jersey.

"Now, here is what really happened on the night of March 1 at 9.30 p.m. Betty Gow, the nurse, was off the scene, and Violet Sharpe, the maid-governess, had gone for a ride with her boy friend.

"Hauptmann and two gangsters—Mueller and Rodriguez—drove madly from a point in the Rose Mount road to the house.

HOW BABY DIED
"Just before they reached it, they picked up the ladder that Hauptmann and Mueller had made, and laid it against the side of the house beneath the nursery window.

"Rodriguez kept watch. Mueller held the ladder, and Hauptmann went in after the baby.

"Before he did so, he pulled a pair of old Army socks over his shoes, to deaden the noise of his movements.

"These socks caused the baby's death. Coming down with the child, they caused Hauptmann to slip on the smooth rung of the ladder.

"For a moment he clawed desperately in mid-air, then swung outwards and downwards—a distance of about 18 ft.

BABY HIDDEN IN HOLE
"His huge bulk crashed on top of the baby, crushing its skull. Hauptmann also broke his own leg, and from that time onwards he was out of the fight.

"Rodriguez and Mueller hauled Hauptmann and the baby to the blue sedan they had chosen for the getaway.

"They drove like furries for five miles, expecting at any moment to hear the wailing siren of a fast police car behind them.

"But there was no chase; no sound broke the silence of the night but the purr of their own engine, so finally they plucked up courage to slow down and look at the baby.

"Only then did they discover that it was dead.

CLOTHING REMEMBERED
"Rodriguez got out, lifted the pathetic little bundle from the back of the car, and started off for the bushes that ran alongside the road.

"Terror was written all over his face as he set to work like a madman. Scraping away the earth with a piece of iron, he placed the baby in the hole and covered its body with brush and leaves.

"Then he remembered something. He dashed back to the grave, tore aside the leaves, and ripped off a piece of the baby's clothing.

"Rodriguez jumped on the running-board as Mueller slipped the gears, and the car tore off.

"Hauptmann's groans from the back of the car did not improve the situation. He was taken in the car to Newark, where he received medical attention.

TOLD TO "SCRAM"
"Mueller and Rodriguez continued on to the Bronx. Here was where I came into the picture.

"I was waiting in the Bronx in another fast car to take the baby to Willow Grove, where everything had been arranged for its reception.

"A trained nurse, in the pay of the gangsters, was to look after the baby, and it was to receive the best possible attention.

"But there was no baby.... I was told to scam—and didn't need to be told twice. Mueller and Hauptmann went off to lie low in the Bronx, while Rodriguez drove off to break the news to Winkler and Fleishman.

"The news to Winkler and Fleishman, who were pacing a room in an apartment house over the river like a couple of caged tigers.

"There was a terrible scene when they heard the news. It meant the ruin of all they had planned. The two big shots were furious.

"They swore at Rodriguez, and the latter, instead of trying to smooth things over, swore back, insisting that he was not to blame for Hauptmann's clumsiness.

"Something had to happen—and it did. The big shots were in no mood to be monkeyed with. Rodriguez' angry comments cost him his life.

"They took poor Rodriguez to the flats in Coney Island, and left him there with a bullet under his collar.

"Then they sat down to think. Something had to be done.

HOW WINKLER WAS PUT "ON THE SPOT"
"Winkler had a brain-wave. Why not carry on with the original programme as if nothing had happened? Did they not have a piece of the baby's clothing? Who was to know that the baby was not still alive?

"Meanwhile, Lindbergh, in his frantic search for the baby, got the aid of Spitalne and Bitz.

"How was poor Lindy to know that it was fixed for these two special guns to 'help' him, at the same time keeping the gang wise to all the police moves?

"Our postcards, signed with pinpricks—Capone's idea—were deluging the police from four or five different States, sending the poor Federals crazy with all sorts of false scents.

"Then Capone threw out his offer of ten grand—£2,000—for the arrest of the kidnappers, though he and the rest of them concerned knew that the child was dead.

"By that time all the money—fifty grand—about £10,000—had changed hands. Mueller went to Germany with £8,000 of the ransom money. A few days later Winkler was seen leaving the office of a United States marshal.

"Why he went there no one knew, but it was obvious he had not gone there just for a meal, so that same night Winkler was put on the spot.

"Blonde Rosa, a gun moll, carried the gun, and she lay in wait with two other gangsters until Winkler appeared.

"Then she handed the gun across to one of the boys, and he slapped a bullet into Winkler, and handed back the gun to Rosa.

"Thus, when the men were searched they had no firearms in their possession.

"Baird, another gangster, was picked up at Kansas City on suspicion, and the police started to work on him.

"I decided that the breaks were going the wrong way and wrote to the police, signing myself 'Public Citizen,' to the effect that a bold, bad man—myself—had run off with a girl from another State, and was therefore liable to arrest under the Mann Act.

"I spent some anxious days in Litchfield County Gaol after that.

"Fleishman knew I had gone to gaol just to be safe and sent me a lawyer. I was kept posted by the mouthpiece as to how things went.

THE THIRD DEGREE
"But the strain was too much for me. My anxiety proved my undoing. I kept questioning my trusty—warden—as to how things were going in the Lindbergh case.

"Maybe, I showed too keen an interest. Anyway, his suspicions were aroused, and I was placed in another part of the gaol under special guard.

"That night I was placed in handcuffs. I knew then what was coming—the dreaded 'Third Degree'.

"I was led into a room where troopers and detectives had 'saps' in their hands. A sap—a weighted bag—is slashed across your face. There is nothing more painful in the world. It would make a dumb man talk.

"They set to work on me. They poured acid on my fingers, and for two days I had nothing but a cup of water.

TIP THAT LED TO ARRESTS
"I suffered intolerable agonies, and I might have squealed at that, but I knew Fleishman and his henchmen would be waiting for me as soon as I left that gaol.

"Month after month passed and I was still gaol. Then they took me to an Emigration Camp at Boston.

"At last, in October, 1933, they told me I would be deported.

"Only when I found myself face to face with starvation here in England, did I give the information to the American Consul, which was sent with my consent to the United States Department of Justice in Washington.

"It was my hot tip that led to Hauptmann's arrest, and implicated four others. One is in Charles-town prison; one in Wetherfield prison; and two in Alcatraz Island.

"GUNNING FOR ME"
"Four have been 'bumped off,' another comes up for a murder rap in Toledo, Ohio, next month; Mueller is in Bremerhaven, while yet another member of the gang is somewhere in France.

"I breathed a sigh of relief when I was given these facts. I was glad it was all over, glad my conscience was clear.

"Then a week or two ago Baird got in touch with me. Two of Capone's lieutenants were in England, he told me. They were gunning for me....

New Groupings

The bewildering complexities of the European situation change almost hourly. In more than one direction definite groupings are distinctly indicated, though formal acknowledgment of them may be rejected. Such groupings bring little encouragement to even the most optimistic peace-maker. At the best, they amount to a practical repudiation of existing treaties, and of the whole basis on which the League of Nations is founded. If war were to break out, they very easily might present the world with the shocking spectacle of the League's own premises occupied by either the invaders or the defenders of even Switzerland itself. For who could claim to be safe if the anarchy of war were to return? Signs of so surprising an event as a Franco-Russian rapprochement have been evident for some time. The late M. Barthou, when at Geneva in September last he supported the admission of Russia to the League with an earnestness much more than perfunctory, was undeniably expressing the views of his Government; and although M. Archimbaud, who is in charge of the French army estimates, may have gone beyond his brief in claiming that a military alliance exists between France and Russia, few would declare dogmatically at such a juncture as this that the thing in itself is utterly unthinkable. It would until quite recently have seemed impossible for France, one of the few remaining countries in which democracy is still making a stand to work with the Red Czarism. But among the achievements of Nazi Germany must be ranked the feat of bringing together not only these, but other apparently irreconcilables.

More and more the position approximates to that of pre-war days. The European Powers are seeking friends, either avowedly or semi-secretly, and Britain, as before, stands somewhat diffidently on the flank. Can anyone contend that the world of the Republics is a better and safer world than that of the Kings? Things, indeed, are worse to-day than they were prior to 1914, both because of the blasting of so many high hopes and because of the concrete fact that the old former alliances were openly made, aiming to maintain, as for long they actually did, the much abused Balance of Power. A balance of any kind would perhaps be preferable to the now prevailing universal uncertainty, with alliances merely hinted at denied, or shrewdly suspected. The drawing closer, often surmised, of Germany and Japan, is not a contingency to be too lightly dismissed, and the common interests of Great Britain and the United States are sufficiently visible to make an understanding between them easily comprehensible. Of this last four, only Britain adheres to the League, and Mr. Baldwin has just stressed the need for inducing the others to alter their attitude to it. Why America continues to refrain from joining is indeed an anomalous thing. She interests herself in the leading questions of the day quite as actively as any nation, and admits continually by her own actions that she can no more live to herself alone than Britain can. One thing is certain, that in her dealings alike with those outside the League and those within, Britain will work always and only for peace. Italy has of late taken it upon herself to champion both Austria and Hungary, and the "Daily Telegraph's" Vienna correspondent reports the holding of a secret conference by representatives of these three countries, obviously as a counter-move to the action of Yugoslavia. It may be, of course, that the conferring three are consulting together with the intention of answering the Yugoslavian case before the League itself in orthodox fashion, though as yet neither Italy nor Austria has been directly involved in any actual charges. But Rome admits that the situation is delicate, Britain, too, is directly interesting herself in it. Smaller causes than this have led to disastrous consequences, and the nations which suffered most heavily therefrom appear to have learned little or nothing. Yet Europe has to choose between self-restraint and ruin, and the choice lies virtually in the hands of a small group of men who possess more real power than was ever vested in a Kaiser or a Czar.

MARINE HAWKER IN TROUBLE

Receives Stolen Property

Appearing on remand, Wong Lam, a marine hawker, was this morning fined $20, in default one month's hard labour, by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistrate's Court. Wong was charged with receiving two pairs of gold cuff links and a silver powder box, valued at $70, the property of Mr. A. A. Andrew, of No. 15 Bowen Road. Defendant was discharged on the larceny count owing to insufficient evidence. Mr. Andrew identified the silver box by the monogram as belonging to his wife, and said that he lost two pairs of gold cuff links and a silver powder box. Hari Singh, the Indian constable who arrested the accused, was complimented by Mr. Schofield.

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

SIR JAMES O'GRADY

Sir James O'Grady, the Anglo-Irish cabinet-maker, who became the first Labour Colonial Governor, was also the first Labour man to call himself an Imperialist. He was a patriot and, having seen the Russian revolution at first hand, he disliked it. He was disappointed when he was not included in the first Labour Government. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald wrote to him making excuses and holding out a promise of better things to come. "Jim," as he was known throughout the Empire, expected the Moscow ambassadorship. It was never offered to him.

THE TWO "JIMS"

O'Grady once told the story of his rather unwilling acceptance of the Governorship of Tasmania. The offer was made personally by Mr. J. H. Thomas, then Colonial Secretary. The following conversation took place between the two "Jims."

"In accordance with precedent," said Mr. Thomas, "you will be offered a K.C.M.G., and of course as a good Labour man you will refuse it."

"I'll do nothing of the sort," said the other Jim. "If His Majesty is kind enough to honour me, it will be a greater honour for me to accept."

"But think of the Party, Jim," said Mr. Thomas.

"To hell with the Party," replied O'Grady.

TWO KINDS OF CABINETS

Sir James told an even better story about his visit to "Buckingham Palace to receive his K.C.M.G." "I am a Celt," he used to say. "When I rose to my feet I was overcome with emotion, and for once my tongue left me. 'Your Majesty,' I stammered, 'I do not know what to say.'"

"The King then put his arm on my shoulder. 'Don't say anything, Sir James,' he said. 'Come and talk to me about cabinet-making—not my kind, but yours.'"

Your Daily Smile!

The clerk had just completed a quarter century of faithful service with a big business concern. At the end of the day the boss handed him a big envelope inscribed, "In token of this memorable date." The clerk opened the envelope and inside he found a photograph of his employer. "Well, what do you think of my gift to you in recognition of your devoted service?" the proprietor asked. "It's just like you," was the courteous reply.

NONE THE LESS

"It was quite an impromptu affair," "Yes, but it was none the less spontaneous on that account."

Memorable Date

The new general manager was inspecting the branch office. "How long have you been working here?" he asked the office boy.

"Ever since the day the boss threatened to fire me," replied the young man.

SALVATION ARMY'S RELIGIOUS DESPOT GENERAL W. BOOTH

HOW HIS AUTOCRACY WAS CREATED AND BROKEN

(By C. B. Mortlock)

ON October 20, 1912, William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, died, and Bramwell, his son, reigned in his stead. No one who witnessed Gen. Booth's funeral procession through the streets of London is likely to forget it. The old warrior went to his grave full of years and honour. He was a religious genius who in his life-time had been more revered by professedly religious people than any leader since the Founder of Christianity Himself. With no endowment but his own indomitable spirit, and in the face of persecution, ridicule, and venomous misrepresentation, he created an organisation which in his own life-time spread to all peoples, nations and languages of the world.

Queen's Annoyance

Like Wesley, a hundred years earlier, he took the world for his parish. People were always querulously asking by what authority he did things. Queen Victoria was incensed that he raised an Army and called himself a general. His authority was his conviction of Divine inspiration—a conviction which his Army shared, and still shares. Religious genius, like any other genius, is akin to madness. "Madness," said Socrates, "is of two kinds: the one is produced by human disease, the other by an inspired departure from established usages." It is in the second of these senses that Mr. St. John Ervine, whose monumental biography of Booth (God's Soldier; Heinemann, 2 vols., 36s) was published recently, asserts that Booth was one of the maddest men in the world. There has probably never been a more autocratic system of religion than that which Booth devised. "He arrogated to himself," writes Mr. Ervine, "powers of authority and discipline over his followers that the Supreme Pontiff, despite his claim to be infallible, would scarcely have dared to take; and exacted from his officers and soldiers of whatever rank an unquestioning obedience which could not, not fairly, be described as servile."

Ferocity Of Faith

When it is remembered that these powers were assumed and conceded at a time when Booth was being reviled and slandered and his followers brutally beaten and persecuted, the intellectual and spiritual dominance of the man borders on the miraculous. The existence of the Salvation Army as a vast international organisation is evidence enough of the greatness of William Booth. What Mr. Ervine has done is to exhibit in his full stature the astonishing figure which sets the mind searching vainly for a just and single epithet by which to describe him. He was a man ruthless, despotic, ill-mannered, yet possessed with such "ferocity of faith and purpose" that he could entrench himself in the love and loyalty of his abused followers.

Mr. Ervine disposes finally of the polite fiction whereby Booth has been represented as being born of a substantial middle-class family which had fallen on hard times. His father was an illiterate speculative builder, and his mother the daughter of a cottager, who may have been a farm labourer, but was more probably a hawker. For the whole of Booth's childhood the family was desperately poor.

Illness was to afflict the greater part of his life. There is a vivid picture of the days when, as a young man, he was employed as a pawnbroker's assistant in South London, using his Sunday evening freedom to speak at street corners, and panting back, trail and half-fed, just in time to save himself from being shut out at 10 o'clock.

His meeting with Catherine Mumford resulted in one of the strangest stories of courtship. Their love-letters are unlike any other examples in that, gentle as of the arts. They are concerned first and last with the work. But they do not lack ardour. In one Booth signs himself, "Yours in the closest alliance of united soul, spirit and body, for time and eternity; for earth and for heaven, for sorrow and for joy, for ever and ever. Amen."

So far as human observation goes, that grandiloquent superscription was a true picture of the life-long alliance in which William and Catherine Booth sought to reach the homeless and degraded by methods startling in their sensationalism. It is not always a pleasant picture which Mr. Ervine gives of Booth. But everything was justified in the eyes of his followers by the certainty of his Divine mission. He was a magnificent despot ruling in the name of the Lord.

There never was such a Divine-righter as William Booth. There never was a body so utterly devoid of any trace of democratic principle as the Salvation Army. Booth had seen to that in the Dead Pool which he executed in 1878, and supplemented in 1904.

A Booth Dynasty

On the day of William Booth's funeral his officers and soldiers marched in thousands through the streets with banners flying and trumpets blowing. The General was dead, long live the General! The old man had nominated his son Bramwell to succeed him. What is more, in a letter to the new General he suggested that Herbert Booth, a younger son, might be nominated as the third of the dynasty.

Bramwell was invested with all the authority enjoyed by his father, but the seeds of disaffection which led to his deposition were already being sown in fertile soil.

So far as Mr. Ervine's two closely packed volumes are the story of William Booth and of the Army he created, they will be read with pride by every Salvationist. But there is a bitter sting in the tail. In an Epilogue Mr. Ervine sets out the facts as he has been able to gather them of the events which led up to Bramwell Booth's deposition. The publication is certain to make a painful impression on all who have the good name of the Army at heart.

A divorced woman, Yuen Sau Chun, aged 18, appeared on remand before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning, charged with trespassing in the servants' quarters, St. Paul's Boys' College. She was fined $15. On Saturday defendant stated that she went to the quarters to see her husband who was employed at the College, but inquired showed that she was not married to the man she visited.

PREFERRED CIVIL GAOL

Soldier Pleads Guilty To Get It Over With

THEFT CHARGED IN BARRACKS

Stating that he would rather plead guilty and get the case finished with, Pte. Arthur Edward Clinton, aged 36, of "C" Company of the East Lancashire Regiment, and a native of Bolton, Lancashire, England, appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on the charge of stealing and the alternative charge of receiving, a camera, belonging to R.Q.M.S. Smith, of the same Regiment, on December 20, from the Lo Wu Camp, Sheung Shui.

Detective-Inspector Cunningham, of the Yaumatei Police Station, asked for a week's formal remand in Military custody, which Mr. Hamilton was about to grant when the defendant spoke up and asked if he could go to the civil prison instead of the military one.

Mr. Hamilton stated that if the defendant wished to go to a civil prison he could do so, and he added that he did not wish to take the defendant's plea of guilty, as it was just in order to finish the case quickly, he told the defendant that he was an innocent man until he had been proven guilty.

The defendant was remanded until Friday in civil gaol custody.

CLOTH REPAIRER PAWNS COATS

"Needed Money To Make Forced Trip"

Charged with the unlawful pawning of two overcoats valued at $90, Kwoon Po, a cloth repairer, was fined $50, in default one month's hard labour, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Sergeant Baldwin appeared for the prosecution, and stated that defendant was given two coats to repair by Ho Wing, a tailor, on January 18. The next day complainant received a letter from the defendant, stating that as he (defendant) had been ordered to leave the Colony by the Government, he had pawned the coats to obtain some money to do so. The pawn tickets were also enclosed.

Complainant redeemed the coats which were pawned for $16.80. Defendant was arrested on Saturday.

CAMERA MUDDLE

Theft Charge Remanded To Find Owner

Lee Leung, a watchman of the Lee Theatre, Ng Chiu, manager of an electric club shop, and Ng Kuen, unemployed, were charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning, with being in possession of an Agfa folding camera, valued at about $50, in Percival Street.

The first defendant said that it was given to him by the second defendant, who stated that he received it from the third defendant. The third defendant said that he picked it up in Saiwanho.

On the application of Detective-Sergeant Fitches, the case was remanded until to-morrow to find the right owner.

BANISHEE RETURNS TO COLLECT DEBT

But Given Gaol Sentence

Six months' hard labour was imposed on Lam Cheuk, unemployed, for a breach of the Deportation Ordinance when he appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Defendant pleaded that he returned to get some money which he loaned to a clansman employed on the s.s. Lai Ming. He had been banished for a period of five years in 1922.

The Hong Kong University Medical Society will give a Farewell Tea-Party to Dr. D. K. Samy next Friday in the Union Assembly Room of the University Union at 5 p.m. Members and friends are cordially invited.

MACAO HOCKEY WIN OVER SIGNALS

The game on the whole was not so uneven as the score denotes, the Signals often missing chances, and having hard luck on several occasions. Once May ran down the right-wing and went very near scoring, while on another occasion Addis, the centre-forward, shot just wide from the circle's edge.

Martin, the Signal's right-back and captain, played an outstanding game, clearing and spoiling in great style.

Marsh was another player to shine, executing numerous magnificent saves. The goals that passed him were all good shots.

Angelo scored Macao's opening goal, Ramalho followed up with two more, and after the interval brought Macao's total up to five.

STREAMLINE RAIL CARS DEFECTIVE

Temporarily Withdrawn In Netherlands

INVESTIGATION INTO MOTOR FAILURES

At the beginning of last summer the Netherlands railways put 40 streamlined "Diesel electric" express trains, running at 87 miles an hour, into service on the lines Amsterdam-Utrecht-Arnheim, The Hague-Utrecht-Arnheim, and Utrecht-A-Hortogenbosch.

After about two months' service motor defects were discovered, and almost all the Diesel trains were withdrawn and replaced by the usual steam trains.

In all probability the defects were caused by a culmination of vibrations in the motors. It has been noted that the defects appeared after the trains had covered distances of from 12,000 to 20,000 miles.

The Diesel trains also have not been so smooth-running as had been hoped for and the temperature in the carriages proved to be too high, so that many complaints were made by the public. Measures to remedy these inconveniences are being taken.

A decision as to the date on which the services will be fully resumed has not been taken so far because the investigations into the causes of the defects of the motors have not been completed.

The management of the railways has declared, however, that the services will not be resumed on a large scale, unless the utmost possible accuracy as to the working of the motors is secured.

SMALL-POX RAGING IN HANKOW

Vaccination Warning To Inhabitants

DREAD DISEASE CLAIMS BRITISH BOYS' LIFE

Hankow, January 21.

The spread of the dread small-pox has reached such an alarming stage here that the National Quarantine Service, Wuhan Station, yesterday issued a general warning to the public to beware of the disease and to be vaccinated.

According to the Quarantine Service, a total of 19 cases of small-pox have been reported between January 1 and 19, two cases terminating fatally. It is estimated that at least 60 cases were not reported. This is against 9 cases only from January to June in 1933. A British youth, named Robert Russell Shawyer, died recently of small-pox.—Chienki Agency.

Today's Short Story.

THE TWO MARIAS

By Jeremiah
Pride

SUMMER or winter the hour was never altered in the picturesque little town, for time there was regulated by the chimes of Maria Jesus and Maria Juan.

Nobody was left to say who had given these names to the two old bells, or how they had been placed in a tower so high, nor even exactly the principle on which they worked. The elaborate diagrams had been taken from the church at the time of the terrible floods and placed in safety—nobody knew where—by the priest who had perished—a martyr. Did he not himself hold up the statue of the Blessed Virgin in front of the rushing torrent in order that the town might be delivered from its implacable enemy?

Yes! everybody knew that. They knew, too, that after all hope had been abandoned and the people fleeing, Our Lady interceded, and God accepted one blameless life in place of many wicked. But the hidden treasures of the church were never found.

Luis Blasco could describe the chart that once hung over the dial, which set out in Latin how many turns for a Fiesta and how many for the Passing-bell. Luis was old, very old; his son was old, and his grandson now oiled the cogs without over much interest. He would smile a little, certainly, when the great men came, and after having made their long calculations the would put their spectacled faces over the dial and point out how it was regulated by waterpower. Enough to make anyone smile! Did not the sun rise and set, the river ebb and flow? Did not the birds sing and the flowers bloom? Well, then! It was natural for Maria Jesus to chime the hour and the half-hour, and for Maria Juan to strike the quarter and the three-quarters and to repeat the hour exactly ten seconds after Maria Jesus.

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "Master Mariner," by Ivor Bellas.

During the summer nights, when the people could not sleep for the heat, they would say, "Go to the . . . Maria Jesus and take Maria Juan with thee! Is it not enough to strike twelve once, without repeating it?" But the two old bells continued—hour after hour—Maria Jesus sharp and cracked and the slow, dull flatness of Maria Juan saddening the air after her.

There were many houses clustered round the church. The Town Council had been warned that the tower of the two Marias was not safe . . . but then . . . neither was the Cathedral, nor the Dalbade, nor even the solid-looking tower of the Jacobins, to say nothing of the three spires of Our Lady of Sorrows. The money needed was colossal; small wonder that many a struggling tradesman cursed the industry of the fifteenth-century builders that now threatened taxes and still more taxes. The architect pleaded . . . lives were involved, the council sat and solemnly talked. They spoke sadly of pulling down . . . But the cost! They discussed, almost heatedly, the restoration. . . . Worst! It would be like throwing water into the sea. Well, nothing was done, and the bells continued to mark the passing hours, and the folk to sleep, or not to sleep, as they were able.

It was Whit Sunday morning, and Maria Rebelles went to confess before the sun had risen high enough to pierce the gloom of the narrow streets.

"My father," said she tremulously, "I still sin in my heart. Gabriel is for me the sun, moon, and stars. Is there pardon or peace for such as I?"

"My child, if thy sin be great, greater is God's forgiveness. Seek comfort in the mystery of His love and there thou shalt find peace." And Maria went out into the sunlight with peace in her heart, and the flower she bore at her breast was not more innocent than her eyes.

Gabriel Mateo saw her from the open window where he was still making the cakes ordered for the great Fiesta. For days and nights he had been making and baking these cakes, and now—without even hearing the vituperations of his wife—he left the shop and went across into the sunlight to greet Maria, who wore the lily of the valley . . . love token of the south . . . that he had imperilled his soul to buy for her.

Half-an-hour later he, also, went to confess.

"Father," he faltered, "I know that I am a great sinner. Maria is for me all beauty and all goodness. There is no room in my heart for other than she. Even when I look at Our Blessed Lady, I see my little Maria. . . . There can be no pardon or peace for such as I."

"My son! Did not Our Lord take on the mortal flesh that he might endure and conquer? Peace be with thee. . . . God's ways are not our ways. . . . so will He give thee strength."

So Gabriel went back and made his cakes with something like peace in his heart; while the old priest prayed for the two most loved and pitied of all his flock.

Later, when the wife of Gabriel to the church, and went, saying: "Father! I say some word to comfort me. Gabriel gives with his eyes to Maria Rebelles, what he gives not to me, not for love, nor for money, miserable and abandoned that I am!"

REG. DENNY'S DISTASTE FOR FAST DRIVING

Memory Of Accident Still Persists

REFUSES TO SEE DRIVING SEQUENCE FILMED

Reginald Denny, ex-cowboy, rancher, boxing enthusiast and aeroplane devotee, cannot bear to watch a film sequence shot in which a fast automobile is used.

Consequently, when a big car appeared on an interior set for "The World Moves On," in which Denny appears with Madeleine Carroll and Franchot Tone, he decided to wait outside the stage until the scene was over.

Several years ago, Denny played in a film in which he and the leading lady were required to disappear from view of the camera at a good "lick." The girl was at the wheel of the car.

The director called "turn them over" and Denny and the girl went through a brick wall. He suffered a fractured skull.

Franchot Tone and Raul Roulien, however, fared better in their scene for "The World Moves On," and the fast indoor drive ended without disaster.

OLD INVALID LADY MAKES A STAR

Photograph Sent To Theatrical Agent

By sending her picture to a theatrical agent, an old lady in a wheel chair launched Madeleine Carroll on her career. The agent was intrigued and a job with a touring troupe put an end to the beauty's school-teaching days. Miss Carroll co-stars with Franchot Tone in "The World Moves On."

FINANCE CORPORN. DIRECTORS SUED

Concern That Closed In Three Months

In connection with the closing, on December 12 last, of the Wing On Finance Corporation, North Szechuen Road, Shanghai Messrs. Teng Ching-kuen, Yeh Han-cheng, and Tsieng Yo-chu, all directors of the corporation, were accused of frauds, in a private criminal prosecution brought in the First District Court Shanghai by the general manager of the Teh Lung Tobacco Co., North Honan Road.

The complainant alleged that his company deposited $50,000 with the defendant corporation, which suddenly closed within three months after it was opened. The defendants all failed to appear in Court, and the hearing was adjourned for a week.

"The World Moves On," marks the film debut of Siegfried Rumann, distinguished Broadway character actor. He has an important role in support of Madeleine Carroll and Franchot Tone.

PARALLEL EVENTS IN STARS' LIVES

Both Rose To Fame Overnight

HOLD SIMILAR OPINIONS ON STAGE AND SCREEN

Madeleine Carroll and Franchot Tone found much in common about their respective careers during production of "The World Moves On." Madeleine was born on February 26, and Franchot on February 27. Both graduated from college with honours in French.

With next to nothing in her purse and garbed in her mother's best clothes, Madeleine set out with a provincial touring company to make her name on the stage.

With nothing in his pocket, and garbed in his elder brother's best overcoat, Franchot set out with another touring company, with the same idea in mind.

A year later both had skyrocketed to fame overnight.

Both are strongly of the opinion that actors and actresses should be compelled to divide their time equally between legitimate stage work and film-making.

Franchot says his role in "The World Moves On" is the best he has ever had. Madeleine says the same thing of her role.

Their director, John Ford, says they both "know so much about acting" that directing them was a pleasure.

FIRST-AID OUTFITS IN TAXICABS

Stockholm Innovation

Pedestrians in Stockholm if involved in an accident may receive first aid almost at once.

All the taxi drivers working for one of the largest taxicab companies in the city have been supplied with first-aid outfits for the benefit of the public.

After an accident anyone can stop the first taxicab that comes along and ask the driver for bandages.

TENEMENT SOLD FOR A FARTHING

Six lots of tenement property were sold by auction for a farthing a lot in Glasgow.

The buyer paid 1½d. for the whole property.

For two other lots another purchaser paid 2s.

The tenements are subject to certain legal restrictions.

By way of contract, freehold ground rents formerly owned by Lord Derby and producing rents amounting to £2,584 a year were sold at Liverpool for £280,000—a disappointing price, said the auctioneer.

Weight reduction on schedule was accomplished by Madeleine Carroll. In the early sequences she had to appear plump; and later as a modern young lady of fashion, "Sister" she turned the trick.

30-YEAR-OLD PLAN REVIVED

NICARAGUA CANAL PROPOSAL

PANAMA CANAL TOO SMALL FOR SHIPS OF FUTURE

The 30-year-old proposal for a Nicaragua Canal traffic has been brought up again by Mr. Carl Vinson, Chairman of the House of Representatives Naval Committee.

He declared that a Nicaragua Canal will be necessary because, in a few years, the locks of Panama Canal will not be large enough safely to accommodate some of the ships now being built. Mr. Vinson said that he intended to urge the adoption of the plan, which is estimated to cost $722,000,000. He emphasized the commercial and defence advantages of such a canal and said that the plan will soon be discussed with Mr. Roosevelt.

Sentiment in Congress is predominantly in favour of such a canal. If constructed it will be 172 miles long, and the most practical route will be from Greytown on the Atlantic coast to Brito on the Pacific via the Desecado and San Juan Rivers and Lake Nicaragua.

JADE IMAGES FROM MEXICO

Likeness To Maoris'
Greenstone Tikis

IS THERE POSSIBLE LINK?

Auckland, N. Z.
A possible connection between the ancient New Zealanders and Mexico, probably centuries before the Maoris came to New Zealand, was suggested by Professor R. Speight in a recent lecture at the Canterbury Museum, Christchurch, on gems and precious stones.

Among other countries in which jade was looked upon as a precious stone, Professor Speight said, was Mexico, and when Cortez invaded that country, the Spaniards were attracted by the many beautiful objects made of jade. It was a mystery where the Mexicans obtained jade; it was possible that mines existed and that the original inhabitants had disappeared and the secret of the mines had been lost.

Jade was considered by the Mexicans of the time of Cortez as really more valuable than gold. In New Zealand, greenstone was used for similar purposes as those for which the Mexicans used jade and was looked upon as a precious stone.
The tikis, or small images of the Maoris, had their exact analogy in similar little figures made in Mexico of jade. It made one wonder, he said, whether there had been any real connection between Mexico and New Zealand.

The origin of the Maoris is one of the mysteries of the Pacific.
They came to New Zealand from islands to the north-east, but the general opinion is that their original home was in Asia, their language being of common origin with Malay.

NOT QUITE WHAT HE EXPECTED

Wife Gets One Penny

Albert Cotokole, of Shoenburyness, applied to Southend Justice for the reduction of a maintenance order under which he had to pay his wife 15s. a week.
He said he was now unemployed.
The Bench reduced the order to 14s. 11d.

SOVIET ENEMIES AT THE MICROPHONE

"Class enemies at the microphone" have been discovered by the Soviet authorities, according to The Times Riga correspondent, who says that Moscow has ordered all persons to be taken against counter-revolutionaries at the Moscow wireless stations. Six prominent wireless officials and announcers have been removed from their posts.

THE TWO MARIAS

"Daughter," said the priest, hardening his heart against these tears of jealousy rather than grief, "tell me the wrong thou hast done toward this man and his woman."

"My father, I have sinned. ....
He was young .... and I already a widow .... old .... Father! give me some word."

"Continue, daughter."
"Father, such was my sin and his simplicity that he married me. ....
Ask me not how I so greatly sinned.
.... He married me, father, loving Maria Rebellas. Speak! I will do a long penance .... make a pilgrimage .... give to the church .... A word, father, a word to console me."

"The voice of the old priest was very sad. It had been a long con-fessional; he was weary, and could not frame a message of comfort.
"God alone can pardon, as He alone can punish thee. Go, pray to Him that He may, out of His great mercy, give thee peace."

"Midnight came. The streets around the church were silent and dark; nothing was left of the noise and laughter; the river was full, but scarcely lapped her banks; the frogs ceased to croak. Maria Jesus struck twelve, and Maria Juan repeated it. The old priest heard them as he looked out on the purple darkness of the night. "Thy ways are inscrutable, O Father of the universe," he murmured.

"Luis Blasco heard them. It comforted him; they were companions who did not blame him for being so old and yet living on."

The wife of Gabriel heard them and called shrilly: "Art thou never coming to rest, Gabriel?"

"Let be, woman!" answered Gabriel gruffly. "Thou has collected the big money, it is left for me to count up the small."

"Ah," thought she, turning over in the big handsome bed, "A little more patience and he will find a passion more absorbing than his Maria.
He has the secretiveness of a miser.
To-morrow I will talk of my investments."

And Gabriel counted the tiny coins: "Ten, twenty, thirty .... how beautiful thou art, my little Maria.
.... Thou hast worn my love token all the day. .... The pile of coins fell and he started again: "Ten twenty, thirty. .... Thou art perhaps dreaming of me, beloved forty, fifty .... sixty."

Out of the silence came a rending and cracking, a heaving, moaning, thunderous spilling, and then the tower of the two Marias fell across the houses, across the streets and the little bridges. ....
Maria Juan cranked with her enormous weight on the little low bikery, but Maria Jesus was flung wide, and fell on the high roof under which Maria Rebellas slept; one hand under her cheek and the other holding Gabriel's love token.

SALVATION ARMY'S RELIGIOUS DESPOT

Whether or no any good purpose is to be served by the disclosure of the melancholy story is a question which it is too late to argue.

Evangeline Booth, the present General, when commander in America, was resolved to secure some alteration in the method of appointing the General. She also desired to limit his powers, and Bramwell remembered, when crisis was approaching, "that his sister had threatened to tear him from his seat." A highly organised attack on the General was being conducted in America largely in the form of bulletins, signed "W. L. Attwood," a private soldier of the army who was so private that Mr. Ervine has been unable to discover his real identity.

Bramwell Booth

Whispering calumnies were set going, in which the General was accused openly, and by implication of misuse of power and funds, to say nothing of nepotism.

As chief of staff Commissioner Higgins, afterwards himself to be General, stood closest to Bramwell Booth. Mr. Ervine prints many letters in which his unswerving loyalty and devotion to Bramwell are expressed. In January, 1928, he returned from America, and reported to the General that "the campaign undoubtedly has begun to fail." On March 9, Chief of Staff Higgins attended a private meeting of several members of the higher command. They met in muffi.

"The chief of staff failed to tell the General that he himself had been invited to a meeting of disaffected officers, and proposed to attend it." On March 5, Commissioner Higgins visited Bramwell Booth, and expressed his profound sympathy to the General, over the action of his sister Evangeline, "but did not tell him that he himself intended to the present at a meeting of disaffected Commissioners in London that very night, nor did he [Bramwell Booth] ever know that his chief of staff, who had sent him many affectionate letters, in which eternal fealty was vowed, had attended this meeting and another which was held on March 9."

When Bramwell Booth was taken ill, "Intrigue," says Mr.
Ervine, "developed at a feverish pace. A vast fear pervaded the minds of many important officers that a Booth would succeed to a Booth before they could arrange to break the dynasty."

This was their plight. If Bramwell Booth should die before the High Council were formally called, his nominee, whoever he or she might be,
would automatically become General, and the dynasty would become more difficult to remove."

The meeting of the High Council summoned while Bramwell Booth was ill in bed, deemed all proof of his alleged "unsuitness" to be unnecessary. Their refusal to hear his defence by counsel is an incident sad as it is surprising.

A "BRIDGE OF SIGHS" FOR FINCHLEY

Finchley Borough Council have approved a scheme for a new town hall, by extending the present municipal offices across Hendon Lane.
The buildings are to be connected by what a councillor described as a "bridge of sighs."

The idea was opposed at the council meeting by Councillor Major Steward who supported the original intention of building a town hall on the glebe land at North Finchley.

Mr. Ervine's study of Bramwell Booth's deposition leads him to a gloomy conclusion. "Bureaucratic business men will," he says, "henceforth rule the Army;
men of high spiritual perception are now, humbly speaking, debarred from the Generalship, and perhaps from all great authority."

Future Of "Army"

What, then, is to be the future of the Salvation Army? Mr.
Ervine answers that "the prospect is dismal and may justify those who admire the Army to fear that its life will be short and spiritually barren. The accession of General Evangeline Booth to power, in circumstances of fervid enthusiasm, does not promise early fulfilment of that gloomy prophecy.

CEYLON GEMS NOT WELL CUT

American Cutter's
Opinion

MUCH OF THEIR BEAUTY
LOST IN PROCESS

One of America's biggest gem factory owners, Mr. A. Ramsay, whose firm has branches all over England and the Continent, arrived in Colombo recently from London on his way to India. Mr. Ramsay, in conversation with a Press representative, said that he was interested in all kinds of gems, but mostly bought the uncut variety, which he cut in his factories.

Speaking about Ceylon gems, Mr.
Ramsay said that the beauty of the stones was often lost owing to the manner in which they were cut.
Some time ago Mr. Ramsay bought the finest sapphire in the world from Burmah at a cost of four lakhs of rupees.

COUNTERFEIT MANCHUKUO BANK NOTES

About ¥300,000 in counterfeit Manchukuo notes had been made by a gang in Manchukuo and the notes are believed to have been smuggled into Japan, according to information from the Manchukuo authorities. Thus far only about ¥6,200 of the notes have been discovered. The notes are in denominations of ¥10, according to the police.

CHILD SELLING

Alleged Kidnapping
Case

Two married women, Tang Ping and Li Lin were each sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. E. L. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy this morning, for taking part in the sale of Au Yung, a 10-year-old girl.

It was alleged that the child was kidnapped in the Colony on January 9 by some person who has not yet been arrested. She was sold the next day in Canton by the defendants who acted as go-betweens. They received $3.50 and $2.40, respectively, as commission.

The child was subsequently recovered, the mother having received a letter from the kidnapper, informing her of the whereabouts of the child.

Detective Sub-Inspector Andrews stated that a considerable amount of child selling is at present going on in the Colony.

CHINESE BAZAAR A SUCCESS

Applications For Stalls
Near Limit

That this year's Chinese Bazaar will be an unmitigated success is borne out by the fact that out of the 393 marked-off spaces in Gloucester Road, 250 have already been taken up, and it is expected that all will be occupied by to-day or to-morrow.

This contradicts the statement of a contemporary which pointed out that only three of the total number of allotted spaces had been applied for.

The Chinese Bazaar allotments in Kowloon were taken up within a day or two of the opening.

The a.s. Nellore left Moji on Friday and is due here to-morrow afternoon.

BELGIAN MINISTER TO CHINA

Baron Guillaume And
Suite In Canton

OFFICIAL WELCOME

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, Saturday.

His Excellency Baron Jules Guillaume, Belgian Minister to China, arrived here this morning by steamer from Hong Kong. He was accompanied by Baroness Guillaume, Monsieur H. Van der Straeten, Belgian Consul-General at Hong Kong, Monsieur J. Delvaux de Senffe, Councillor to the Belgian Legation, and Mr. Chow Hek-tong, secretary of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, who went to Hong Kong to accompany the party to Canton.

Baron Guillaume and his party received aboard the steamer Fatsan Colonel C. W. Leung, representative of General Chen Chi-tang, and Dr. Wu Pak-shing, representatives of Mayor Liu Chi-wen, who were sent to welcome the visiting diplomatist. The party then motored to the Municipal Building for guests under the escort of gendarmes and bodyguards.

At 10 o'clock this morning, Minister Guillaume called on members of the South-west Political Council and later he paid a visit to General Chen Chi-tang, Mr. Lin Yun-kai, Chairman of the Provincial Government, and Mayor Liu Chi-wan. These officials returned the call in the afternoon.

The object of Baron Guillaume's visit to Canton is to study conditions in South China, as there is no Belgian consulate in Canton. The Minister will study the possibility of extending Belgian trade in South China and will visit places of interest to-morrow.

To-night Chairman Lin Yun-kai will give a dinner at the Provincial Government building in honour of Baron Guillaume and members of his entourage. Other high Chinese officials will be present.

Letters of Administration have been granted to Ho Fook Shui of No. 118 Wellington Road, son of Ho Hong, a retired merchant, who died on September 6, 1934, leaving estate to the value of $26,700.

MAN MISSING FOR 14 YEARS

Distribution Of Estate
Settled

What Mr. G. H. Sheldon defined as a somewhat troublesome matter came before His Honour the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. Macgregor, in the Supreme Court this morning.

The case was one in which Mr. Wong Wai Fong, the executor of a will, was unable to complete the estate because another person, Wong Kum Cheong, had run away in 1911 at the age of 14.

Efforts had been made to find the missing man, but up to now no information had been received concerning his whereabouts.

The matter had had a lengthy hearing in chambers, and as the necessary seven years had elapsed in which a person can be legally assumed dead, an order for distribution of the estate was requested.

His Lordship gave the necessary order.

The forthcoming marriage is announced between David Ridder Castro of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Co., and Bertha Pereira Marques Soares, of No. 18 Treveasa Dos Santos, Macao.
